

Physician Scientist Training Program

As you prepare to apply for your residency in Internal Medicine, we would like to invite you to attend an evening with University of Colorado Physician Scientist Training Program (PSTP).

Applying to PSTP programs is more complex than applying to a three-year, categorical residency – and every program does it slightly differently. We want to show you what PSTP training looks like at the University of Colorado and how you'll succeed both as a physician and as a scientist. We'll discuss the process of matching into both a residency and a fellowship training program simultaneously. This will also be an opportunity to learn about basic, translational, clinical, and health services opportunities across our Divisions, engage with the residency program leadership, and meet PSTP leadership and current PSTP trainees.

Date: September 23, 2021

Time: 5:00pm - 6:30pm MST

In keeping with the public health efforts during the COVID-19 pandemic, this event will be held virtually.
